

Identify a Determiner

What is a determiner?

Determiners are words that come before a noun.

They introduce the noun and can give the reader important information about it.

Specific Determiners

These refer to a specific noun. Use specific determiners when the reader knows exactly what noun you are referring to.

definite article

possessive determiners

the

this those her his those which these that our their

my interrogative determiner

demonstrative determiners

your

Specific Determiners in Action

Use specific determiners when the reader knows exactly what noun you are referring to.

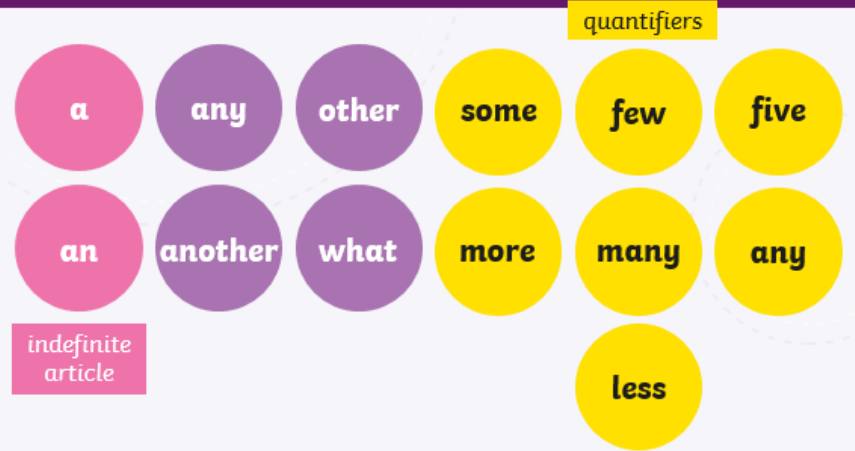

Your pet budgie is smiling at me.

Which film did you go and see?

General Determiners

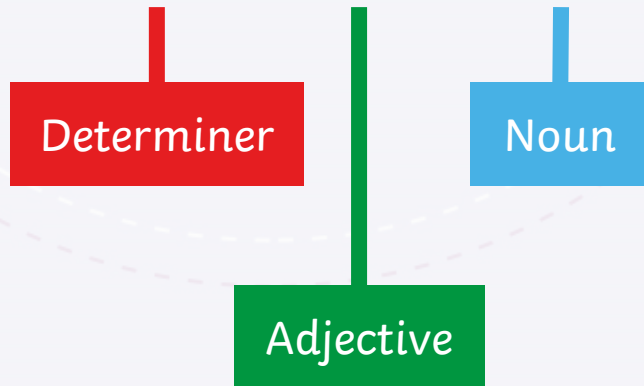

These refer to general nouns or nouns that the reader does not know. General determiners can also tell the reader how many nouns you are talking about, these are called quantifiers.

Determiners and Adjectives

Adjectives (describing words) can be used after determiners to describe the noun further.

That cute kitten is so tiny.

What adjectives could you use to complete these sentences?

Many talented children go to the after-school club.

The last house belongs to my friend.

Determiners and Pronouns

A pronoun replaces a noun. This avoids repeating the noun over and over again. Some pronouns are also determiners because they give extra information about a noun.

The boy took off his coat because he was too hot.

Some pronouns are close but not exactly the same as determiners.

This is my sandwich.

↑
Determiner
↓

That is your car.

That sandwich is mine.

↙
Pronoun
↘

That car is yours.