

Seahorses

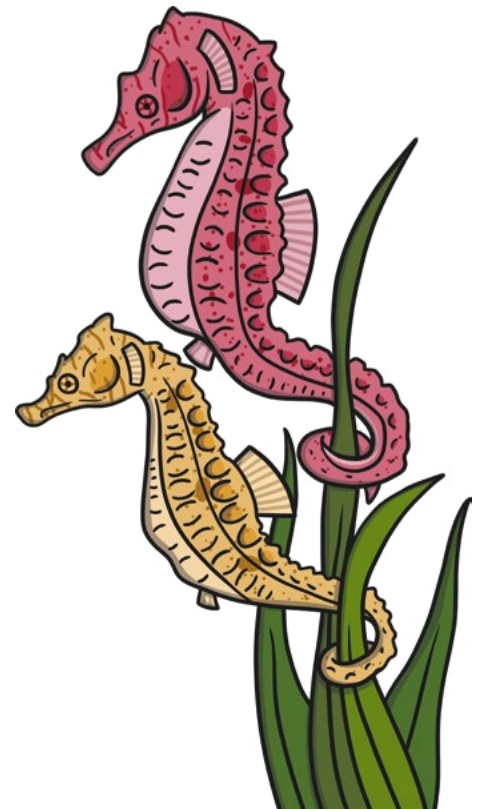

Seahorses are fish. They live in warm waters. They live in seagrass or coral reefs. Seahorses are not scaly. They have skin. Seahorse look like horses. They have a long bent neck. They have long curly tails. Their tails keep them in place. They use their fins to move. They also swim upright. They can hide themselves. This helps them hide from other animals that might eat them. Seahorses eat small shrimp. They use their long mouths to eat. The female seahorse lays eggs. The male seahorse carries them in a pouch. Baby seahorses are called fry.

Read the text and circle the following words:

camouflage
scaly
pouch

1. The word camouflage means to:
hide
sleep
eat
2. Seahorses are not -----
scaly
with skin
furry
3. A pouch is A small pocket in the seahorses tummy.

True or False? -----